

YOUTH LEAP

Youth Leadership, Empowerment, and Advocacy Program Application for New Members

What is Youth LEAP?

Youth LEAP is a peer advocacy program. It is a group of 15-20 teens from all over New York City who serve as role models in their communities by educating other youth about their legal rights, and by helping them protect those rights. Peer advocates meet twice each week to explore their communities, to learn about the laws that impact young people, and to help run a network of youth advocacy clinics that help young people overcome challenges in their lives.

Peer Advocates work one-on-one with other teens facing issues around teen parenthood, getting public benefits and child care, staying in school, employment rights, and health.

What is a Peer Advocate?

Peer advocates are community leaders. They have the the ability to motivate people to work towards positive change for themselves and their community.

Peer advocates are sources of information and support. Young people turn to peer advocates when they need information or help solving a problem. Peer advocates understand their communities, are able to listen to teens' problems and concerns, and are good at motivating others to make their lives better.

Peer advocates make a difference in the lives of other teens. They know how to find answers to some of the toughest challenges teens are facing.

Peer Advocacy means...
...helping and supporting other young people speak up for, and access what they want.

Is Youth LEAP right for you?

Do you want to make a difference in people's lives and in your community?
Are you passionate about justice?
Do you like working with other teens?

What it means to be a peer advocate

Becoming a peer advocate is a very meaningful and exciting experience. Advocates become experts on the impact of the law on young people in New York City, and they get hands on experience protecting the rights of youth in their communities. Peer advocates get to meet and learn from professionals from all over the City, including lawyers, organizers, social workers, and more! For one year, peer advocates participate in three types of activities:

- ★ Getting trained in youth legal rights and youth advocacy,
- ★ Helping to run neighborhood-based youth advocacy clinics, and
- ★ Working one-on-one with youth throughout the City to help them overcome challenges in their lives.

At the end of the nine months, all peer advocates have an opportunity to join the Youth Council to take even more of a leadership role!
